

Capacity is Development

Management Imperatives for Unlocking Web 2.0 Participation

A Capacity Development Brown Bag Lunches Presentation:

Tuesday, 30 June 2009, 12-13:00
Meeting Room 1, UNDP Regional Centre in Bangkok
3F UN Service Building

A central feature in UNDP BDP's Knowledge Management Knowledge Strategy is the implementation of Teamworks. However, like all Web 2.0 technology, how will managers ensure participation?

Based on the article "Six ways to make Web 2.0 work" by Michael Chui, Andy Miller, and Roger P. Roberts, the presentation will outline the six management imperatives and will be followed by a discussion involving the UNDP RCB Knowledge Service Team and attendees.

Andrew is a Junior Professional Consultant for the Capacity Development Team in UNDP Regional Centre Bangkok, from CANADEM's International Career Advancement Placement programme. Andrew has developed Solution Networks of Asia-Pacific workspaces for the Public Private Partnerships for Service Delivery programme, and maintains two blogs. Andrew has a Masters in Applied Ethics: Social and Political, from the Norwegian University of Science and Technology.

If you would like to attend please send an e-mail to andrew.milroy@undp.org